

Catholicism Cultivates Cocoons for Lay Apostolate

Butterflies are fascinating little things. They are implanted in the minds of young and old as intricate and wonderful beings.

It is here at Sacred Heart that students mature from freshman "eggs" into senior "butterflies" and thus gain the "wings" of religious truth and the beauty of love.

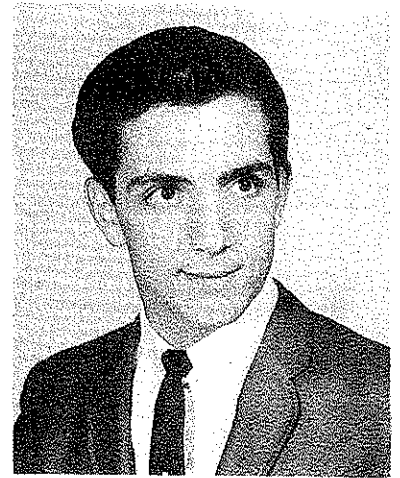

Freshmen enter high school in their own green shells of inexperience. They soon learn that only the nourishment provided by teachers and fellow students can give them the necessary strength to pierce their shells. Grade school has provided the components—the basis of religion. However, through the breaking of the shell, the maturing freshmen are able to understand and use this knowledge. Through living a religion, these "eggs" are eventually transformed into "caterpillars."

In the larva stage teen-agers are always hungry since they are growing so fast. They find themselves developing rapidly and thus always in need of the spiritual strength of the Eucharist. Unseen threats from temptation endanger them, but consolation from the sacrament of Penance remains ever present.

The pupa period of inactivity and silence, so necessary for their growth, is the retreat. This is the time for examination, evaluation, and improvement.

When this metamorphosis takes place, the final stage of development is completed. The seniors finally emerge from their homes, yet young and impressionable. With graduation the painted wings of man's religious convictions, nurtured through this Catholic education, meet their test.

FAR RIGHT: As they partake in the Eucharistic Banquet, Senior class officers, Mike Legato, Val Hogan, Cheryl DuBay, and Marty Vadalabene, obtain nourishment to sustain themselves in their roles of leadership in the Class of '67.

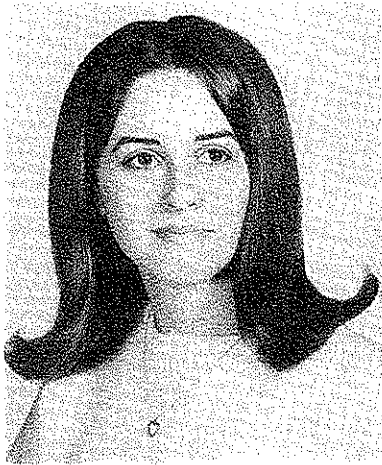

Michael Armand Legato
President

Cheryl Jean DuBay
Secretary

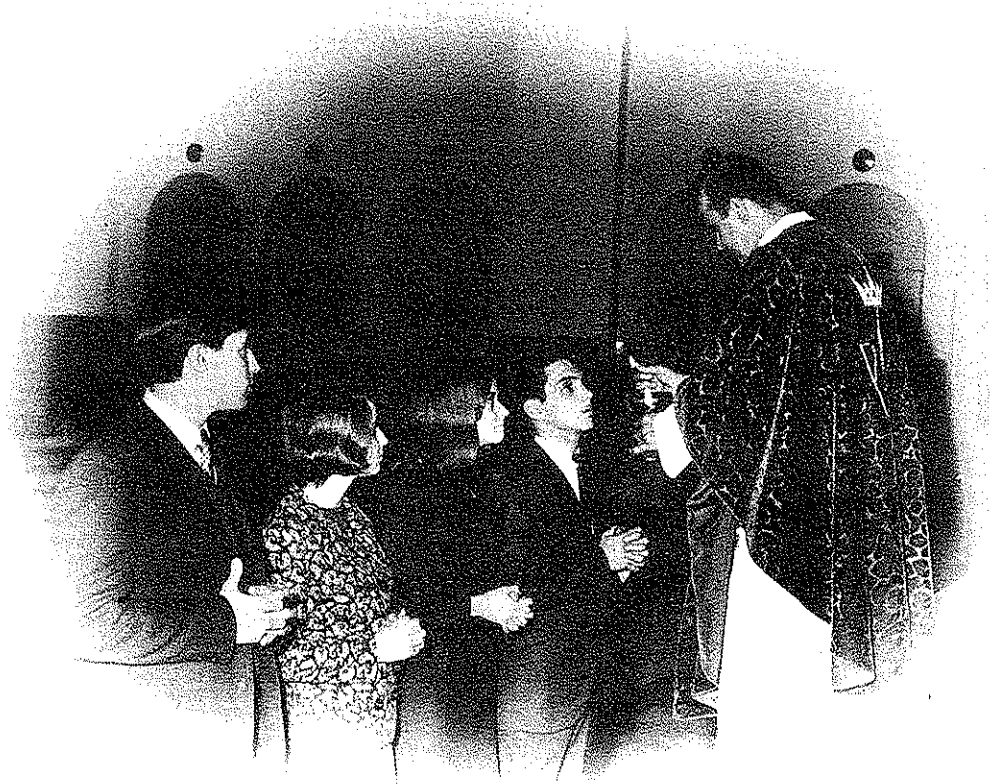

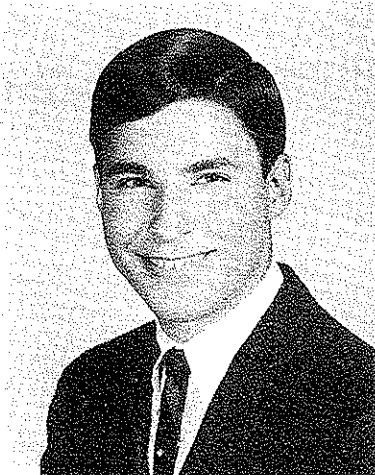

Elizabeth Ann Alberty

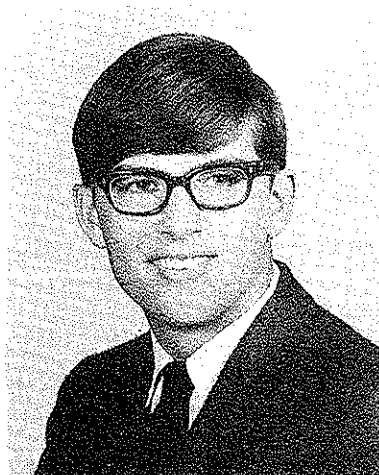

Valerie Ann Hogan
Vice-President

Martin John Vadalabene
Treasurer

Beverly Anne Anderson

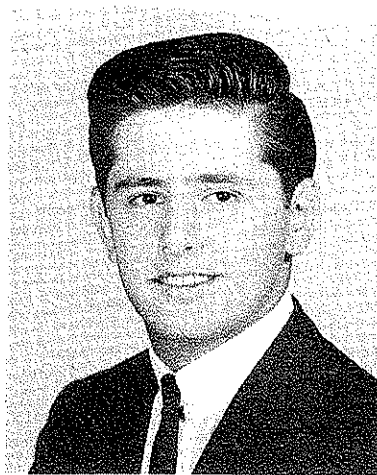

James Louis Ashley

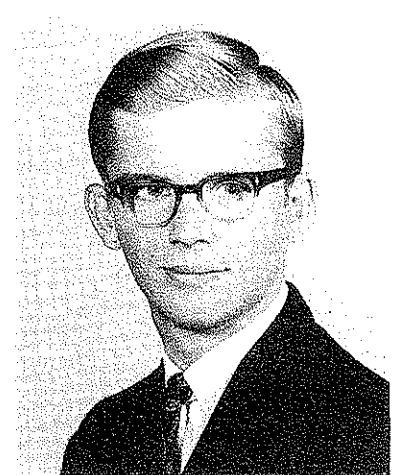

Rosemary Marie Ballor

Frank John Banwarth

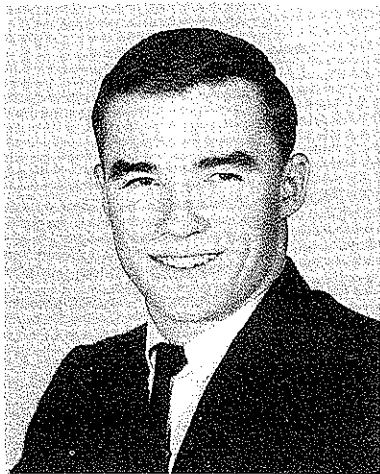

Alfred Henry Berry

Charles Henry Biddle

Market Vs. Young Economist

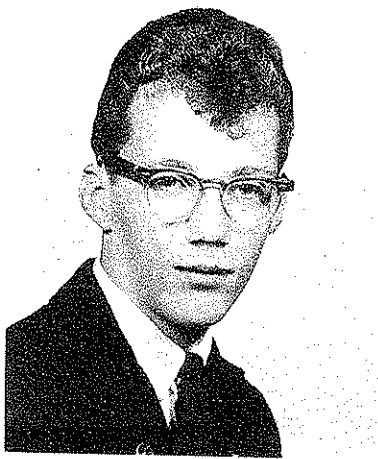

Christopher Joseph Bieszka

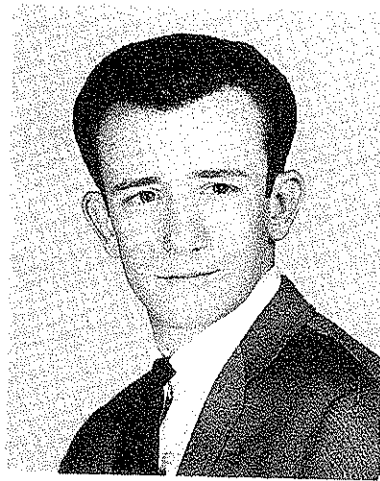

Rose Mary Borgacz

Mary Lee Schumacher checks current data to calculate her next move to secure controlling interest on a rising stock.

Michael Peter Buziak

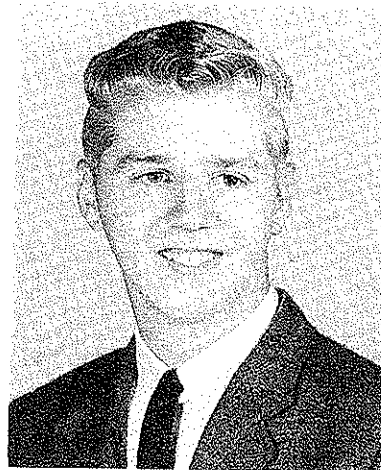

James Richard Cawthon

Ilene Patricia Charbeneau

Gloria Marie Ches

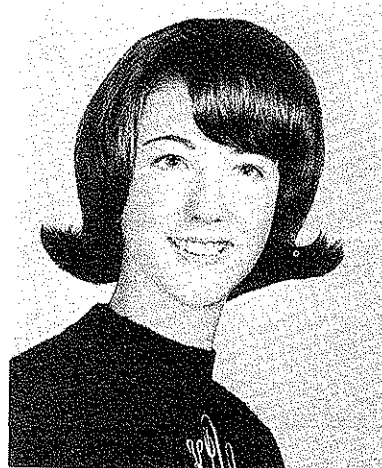

Dennis Raymond Clover

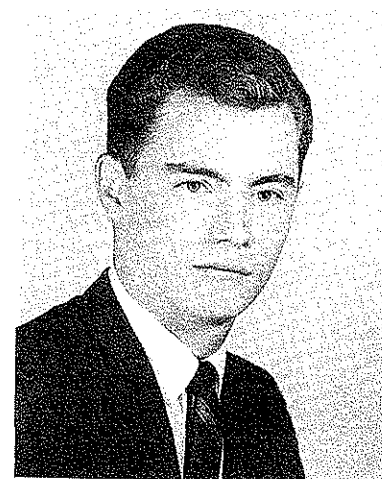

Rosemary Conte

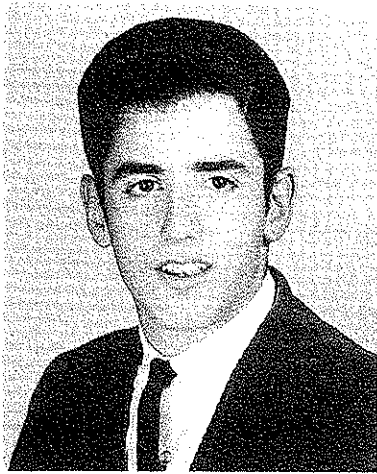

Suzanne Marie David

Kathleen Anne DeBats

Daniel Patrick Debus

David Anthony Deramo

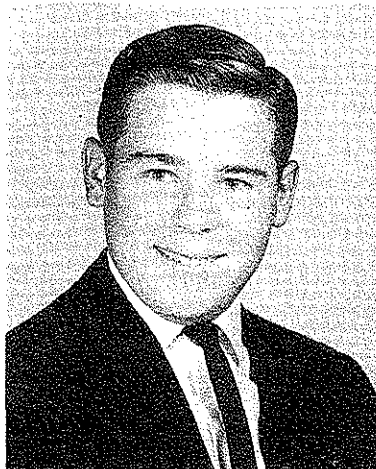

Robert Walter DeRiemaecker

Constance Ann Dobis

Joyce Ann Drouillard

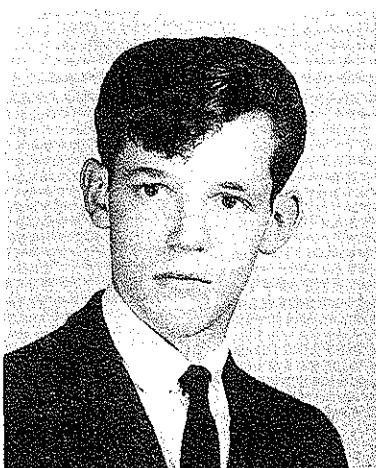

Robert George Edberg

Colleen Ann Farrell

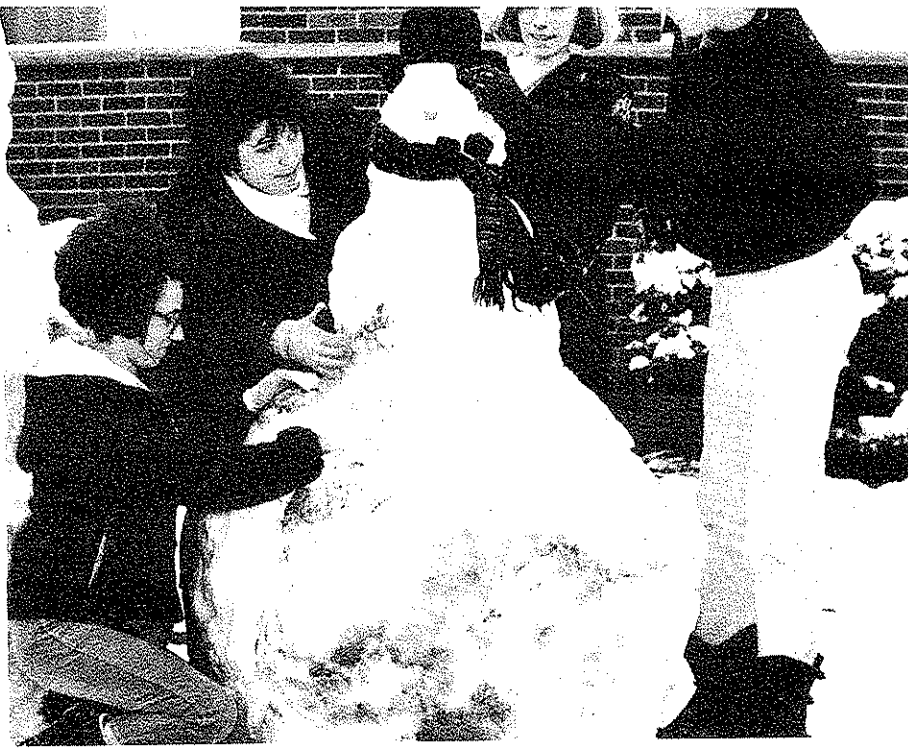

Judith Ann Fleury

Michael James Fournier

Rosalyn Marie Gaffigan

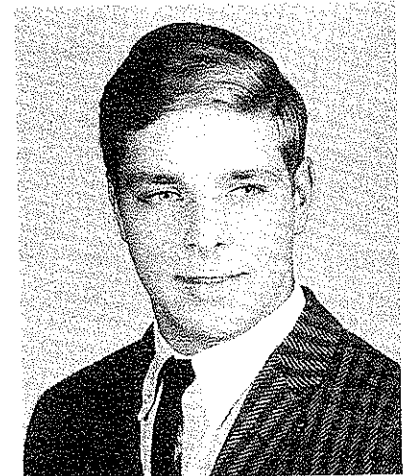

Seniors, Gina Hansen, Angie Palazzolo, Mary Marchand, and Gerry Reigel transform a bit of snow, charcoal, and an old derby hat into a majestic creation of ice and snow.

Winter's Fantasy

Transformed to Folly

Cheryl Theresa Garner

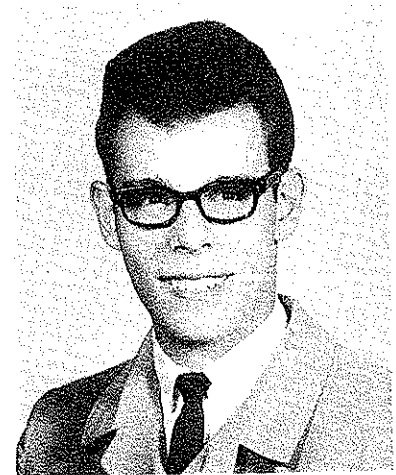

Douglas Edward Gassman

Annette Francine Gauche

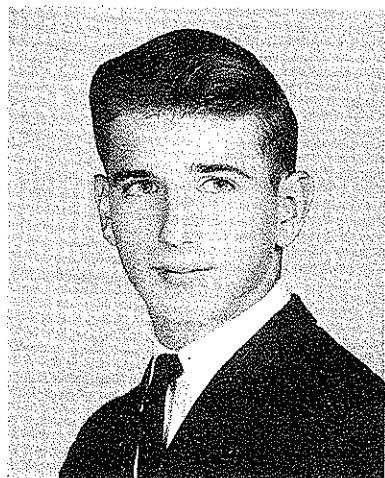

Gerald Edward Gawne

Lawrence Goss

Karen Ann Groth

Daniel James Haisenleder

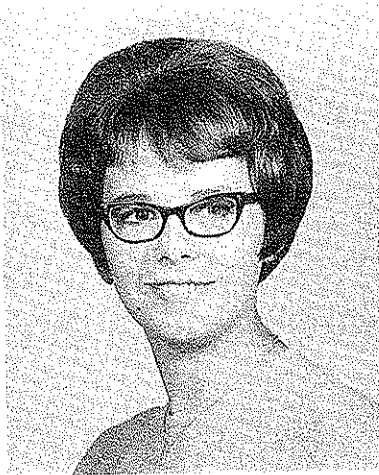

Shadows of meditation descend upon Marcine Rehling as she tries to find the book which will shed a new light on her interpretation of Dante's Inferno.

Sounds of Silence Call

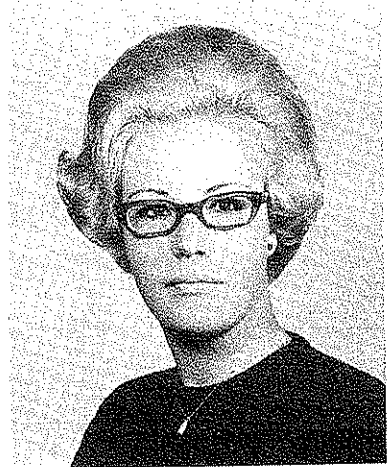

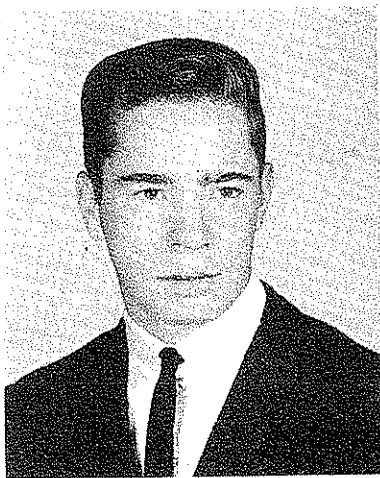

Regina Mary Hansen

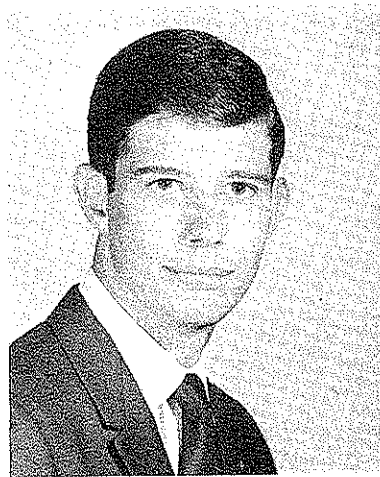

Linda Elizabeth Harvey

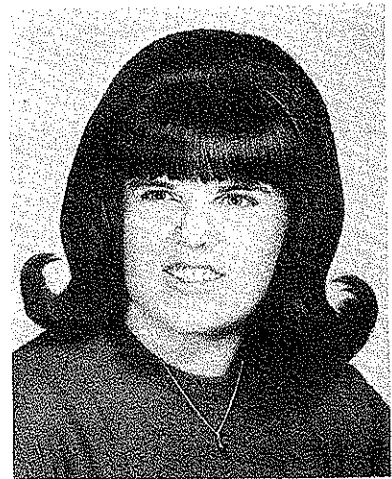

Rita Marie Haslett

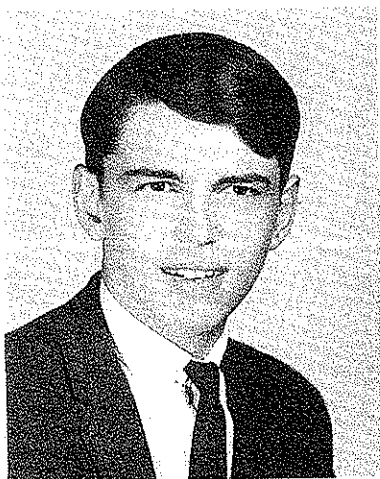

Gary James Hawkins

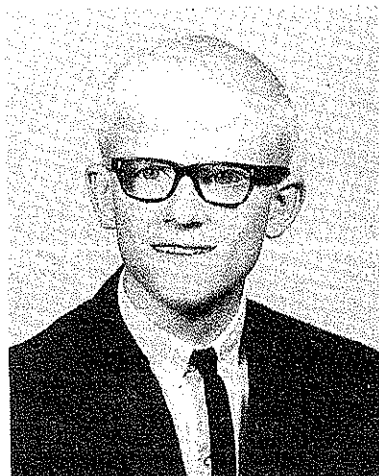

Robert James Hebert

Claudia Ann Hermann

Timothy Alan Hernden

Thomas Glenn Jenkins

Dianne Frances Juckno

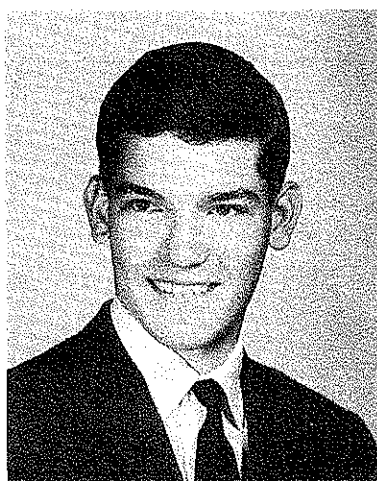

Linda Ellen Kargol

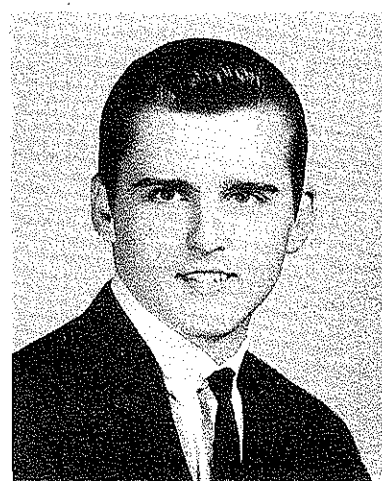

Charles Robert Kayl Jr.

Ronald Joseph Kieninger

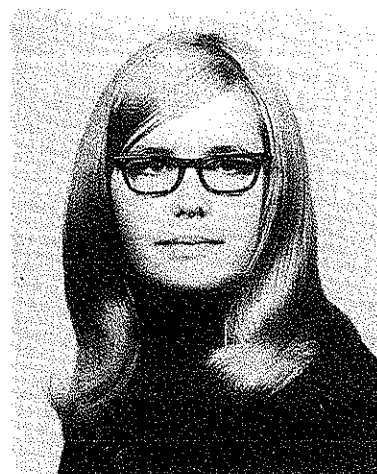

Richard Joseph King Jr.

Robert Ernest Kinsler

Gloria Barbara Koualski

Maryann Irene Krynski

Karen Marie Laforet

Janice Marie Lambert

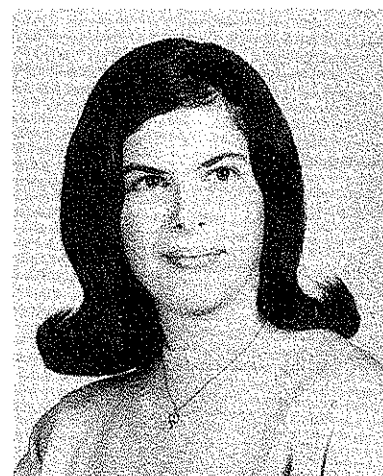

Femme Fatales Use Maternal Instinct To Form Constitution

Helen Versele, alias George Washington, entertains Sister Marylis and the delegates to the Constitutional Convention: Lorraine Winfield, Germaine Wronski, Kathy Macauley, Mary Marchand, Diane Sprecher, Rose Conte, and Shari Schulte, with an amusing anecdote about a cherry tree.

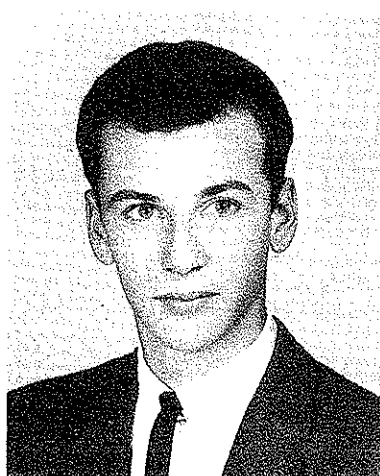

Lorraine Marie LeBeau

Karen Sue Lehner

Christopher Mark Lemanski

Michael Henry Lutz

Elizabeth Ann Lyons

Kathryn Ellen Macauley

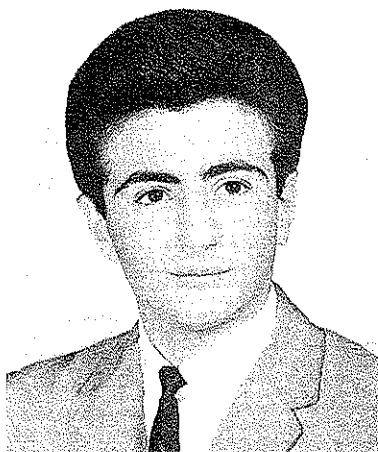

Diane Elizabeth MacDonald

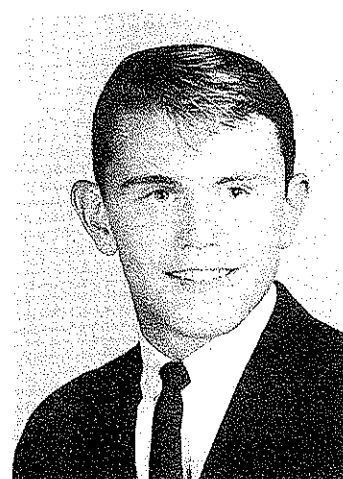

Steven Patrick Macey

Mary Ann Marchand

Leonard Terry Marchesani

David Paul Martus

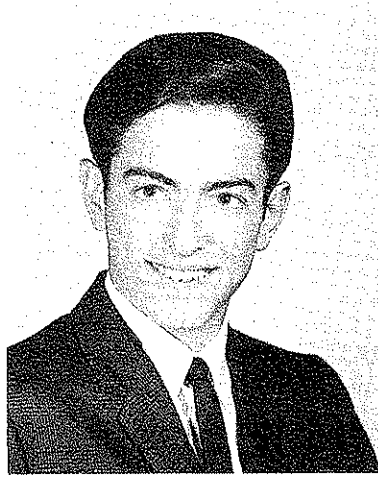

Studious Senior Takes Time for Stat

The master criminal, homework, is cleverly eluded as Mark Trax sits back to watch his favorite television program.

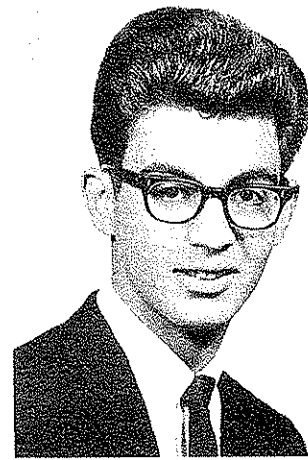

John Raymond McGrail

Ronald Ernest Mezza

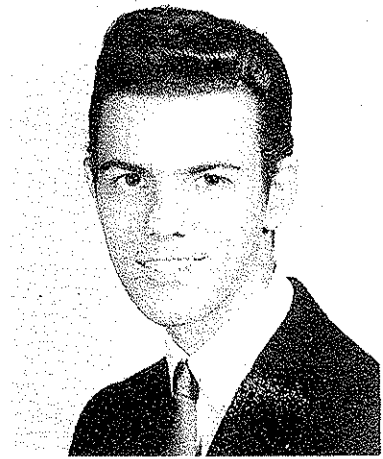

Paul Abraham Michaels

Theresa Darlene Miles

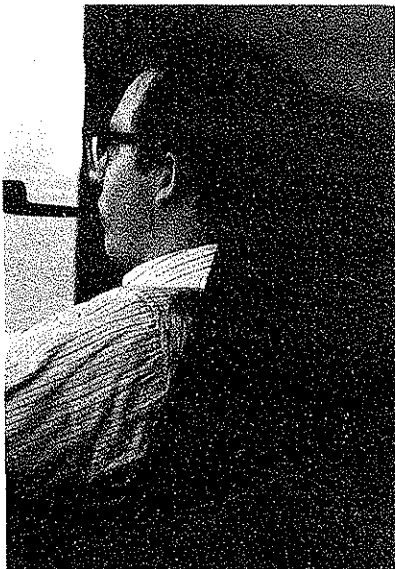

George Stanislaus Mlotkowski

Timothy Ralph Moore

Identification

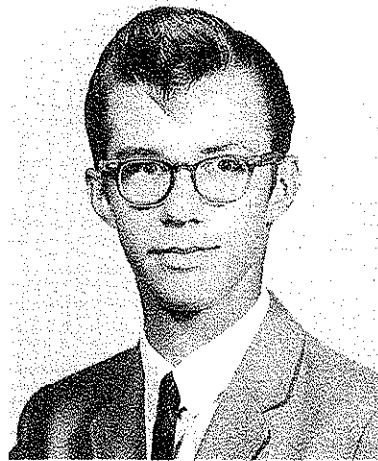

Sandra Jane Moran

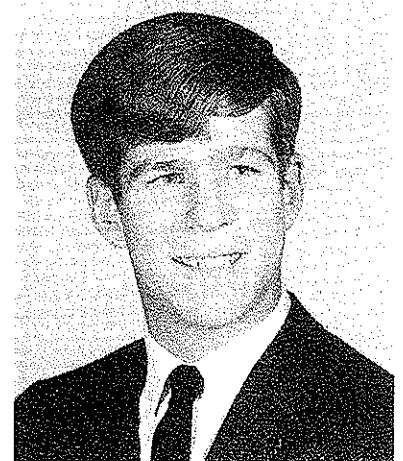

Sharon Marie Moran

Bonita Audry Moronczyk

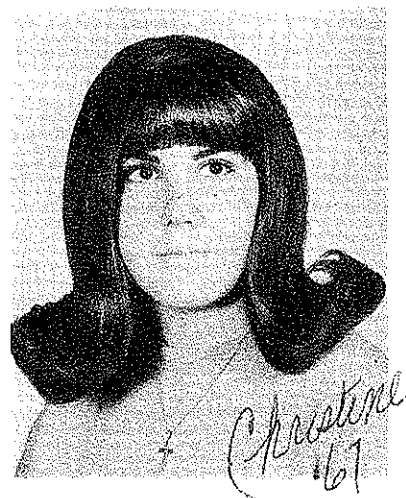

Timothy Casimer Moronczyk

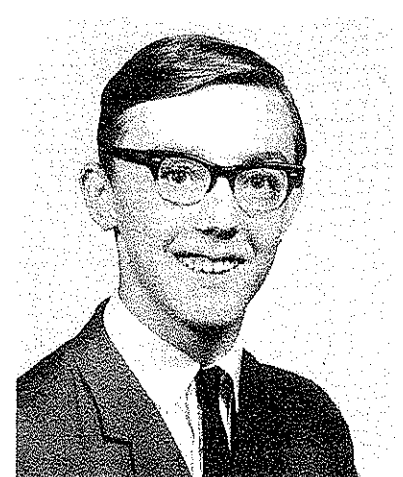

Peter Michael Mott

Deborah Ann Niemer

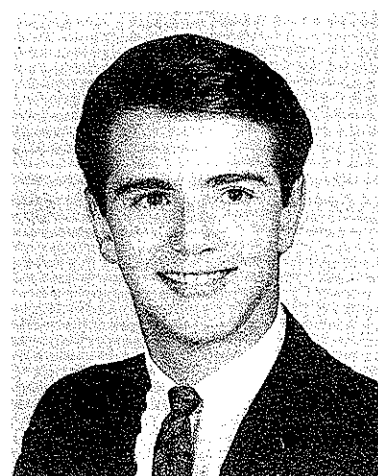

Christine Marie Novak

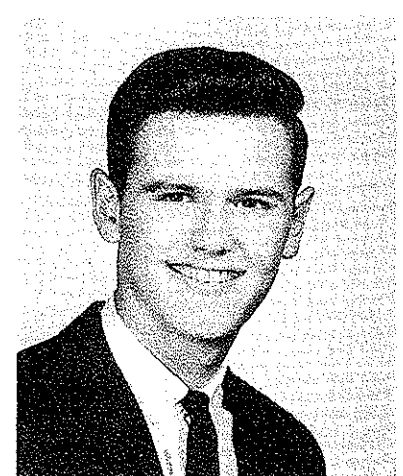

Albert John Pachmayer

Angela Janice Palazzolo

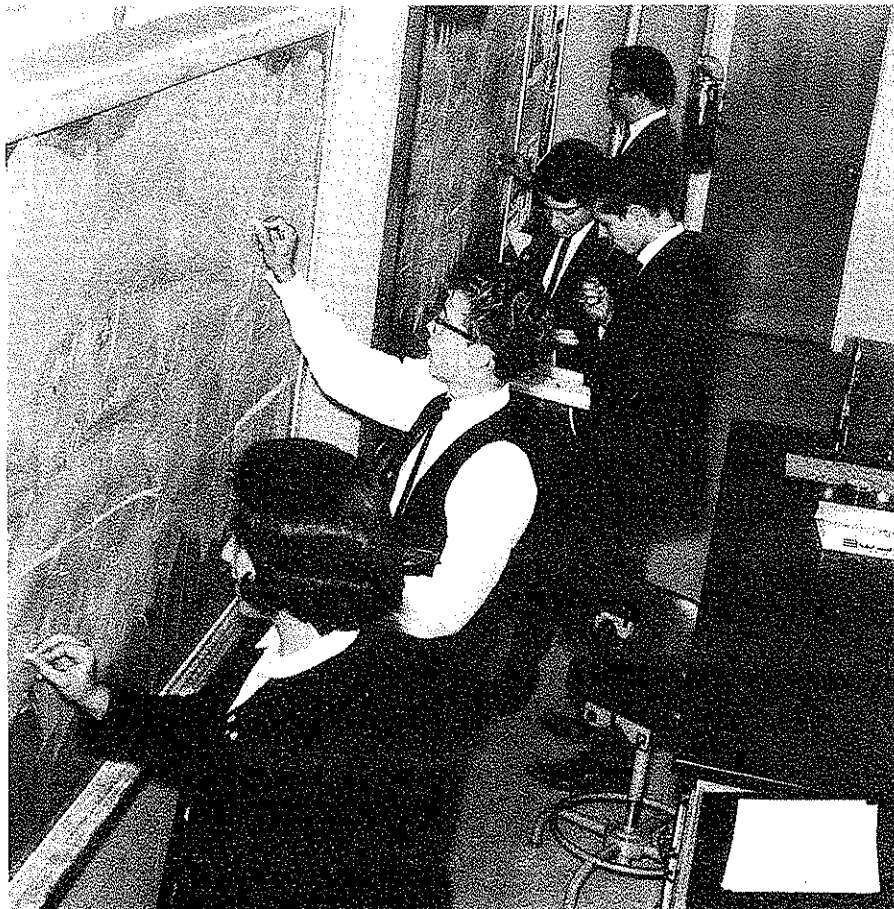

Gregory Charles Payne

Herbert Val Payne

Coefficients Chisel Chalk

Mathematicians, Karen Laforet, Mike Buziak, Chris Lemanski, Steve Macey, and Mark Trax discover the ups and downs of Modern Introductory Analysis.

Anita Peraino

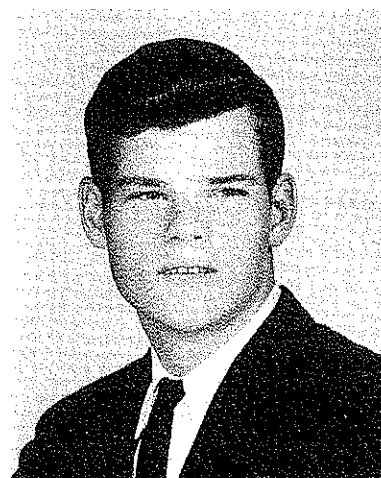

Dawn Christine Piche

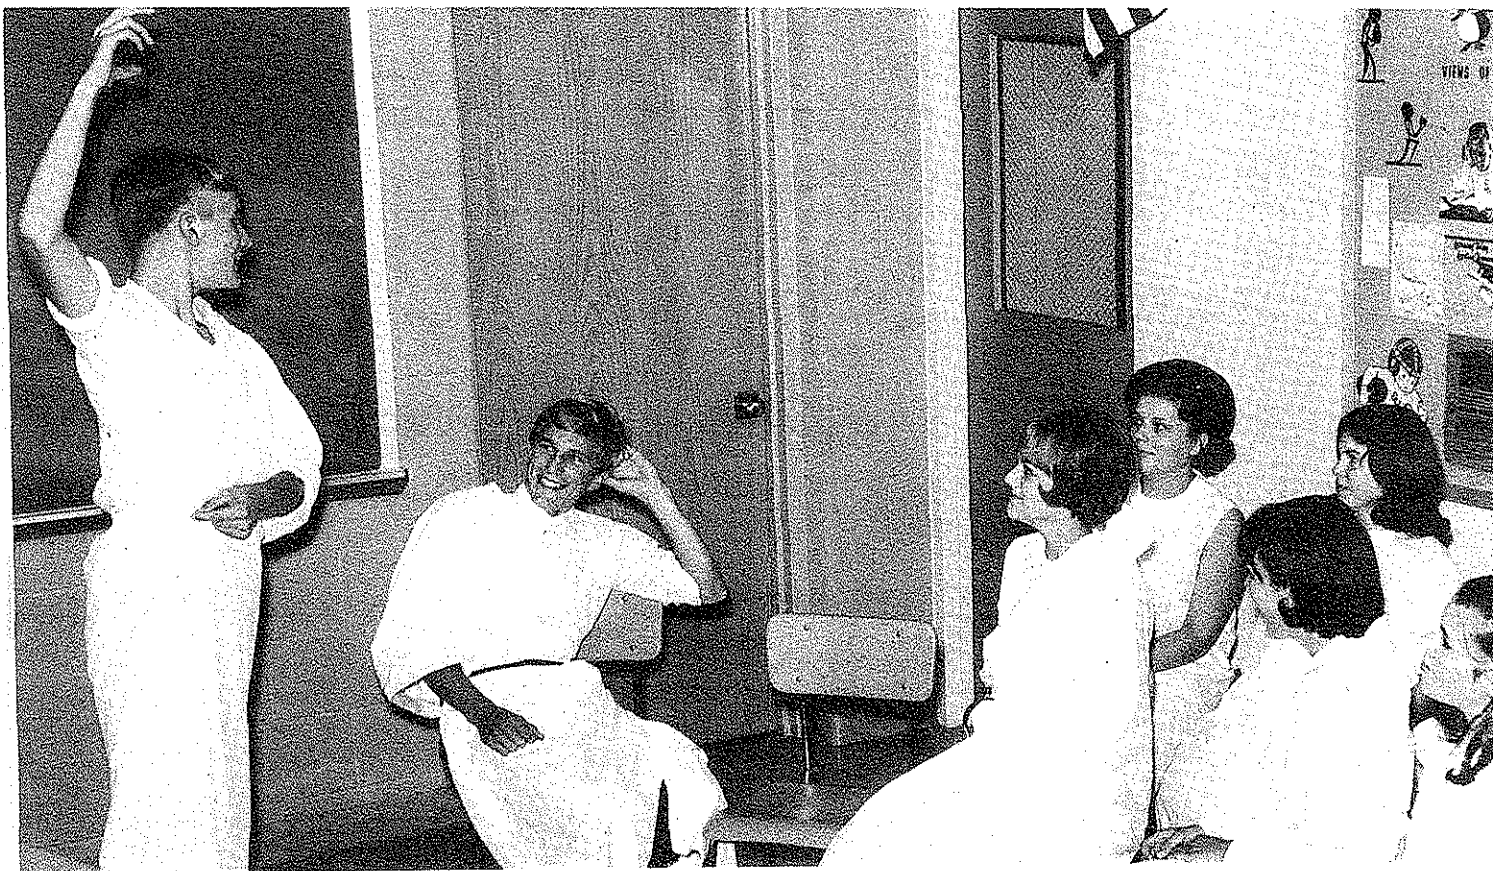

Thaddeus Paul Pikora

Elaine Rosalie Pisarski

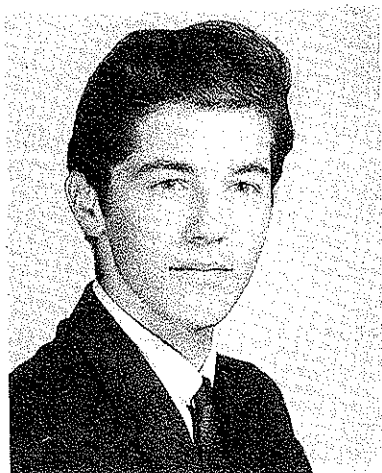

Lawrence Joseph Powers

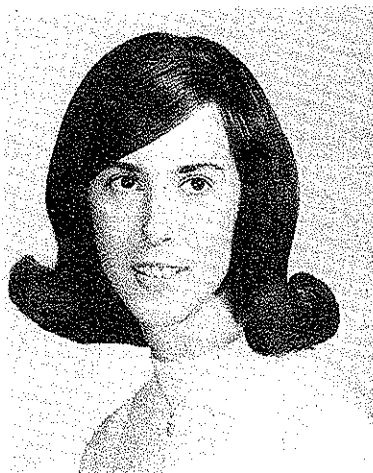

Members of the Senate, Sharon Danis, Judy Schafer, Elaine Pisarski, K. Lehner, and Debbie Niemer, are struck with awe as Cicero (Ray Riest) fiercely denounces Catiline (Jim Siadak).

Linguistic Talent Linked

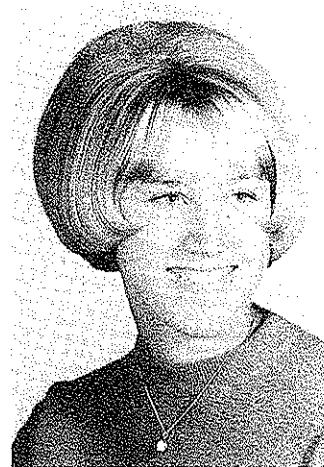

With Diligent Stud

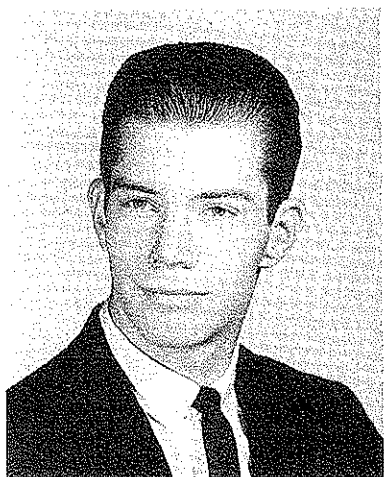

Robert Ovila Primeau

Marcine Ann Rehling

Maurina Lea Reitzel

Gary Arthur Revyn

Robert Michael Richards

Gerald Gilbert Riegel

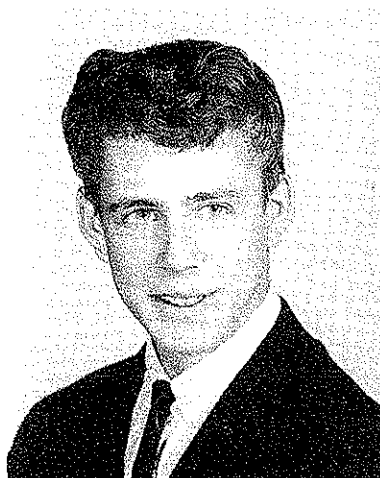

John Riem Jr.

Weldon Ernest Rogers

Kenneth Andrew Rossi

Mark Joseph Ruhrman

Frances Ann Ruma

Pamela Esther Sameck

Student Involvement Is...

"Who is God? Where is He? Yes, that's right. Now for homework next week..."

"Yes, Mrs. Henrich, I'd be glad to help you write a letter to your son in California. You think that he'll be out to see you this summer? That's wonderful!"

"Now we can manage either a ham or a turkey for the basket, so we'll vote on it. All those in favor of a ham..."

"Are you going to pass out literature in front of the polls? Oh, you volunteered to babysit in your neighborhood for some mothers so they can vote."

Involvement—manifested in hundreds of ways similar to these is a little more than getting by with the skin of your teeth, is saying yes when it's easier to say no, is joining that time-consuming club or committee, is working for two days a week at that old folks home. It is this love, this concern for others which is necessary for Christian existence in the adult situation

RIGHT: Santa Claus, Laurie Visconti, loads up her sleigh with food and presents donated by the senior "elves" to fill the stocking of a poor family on Christmas Day.

CENTER: C.C.D. students witness Christ's words being put into action as Liz Alberty carries out His command to "... teach ye all nations."

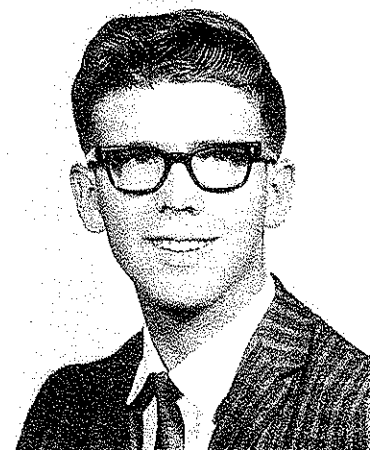

FAR RIGHT: Rick King is not afraid to stand up and be counted as he "gets on the bandwagon" for a favorite candidate in the '66 elections.

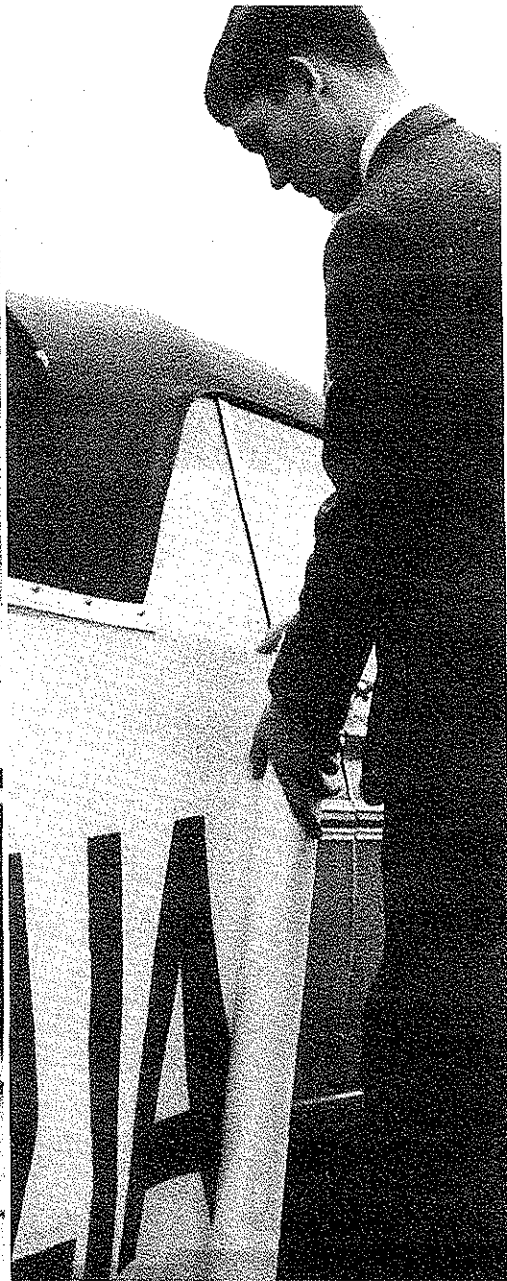

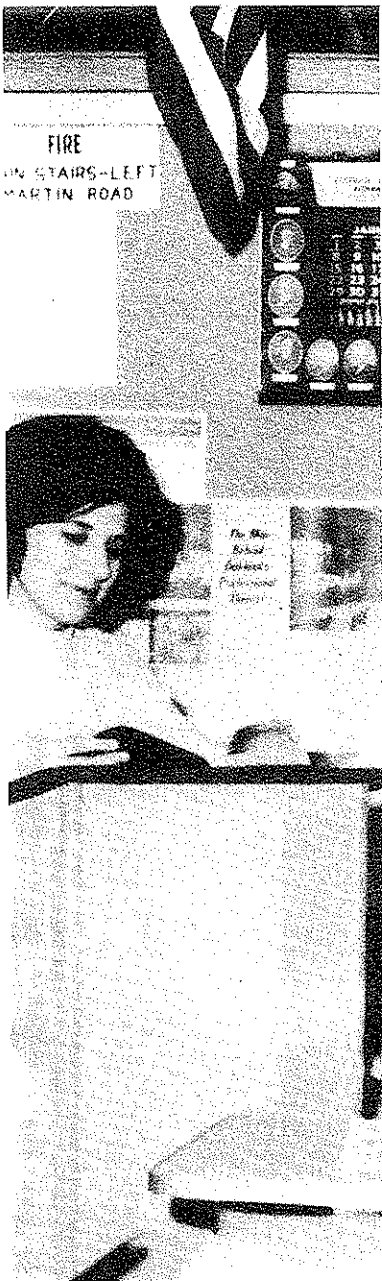

Mary Denise Sareceno

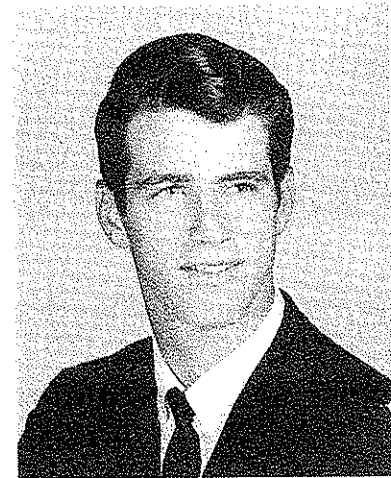

Dianne Adrienne Sarnowski

John Francis Sarrach

Marilyn Ann Savage

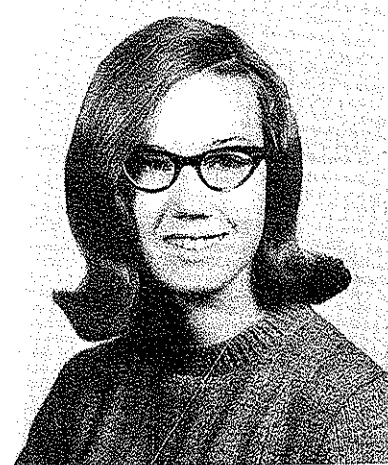

Francis Bernard Scarsella

John Earl Scenga

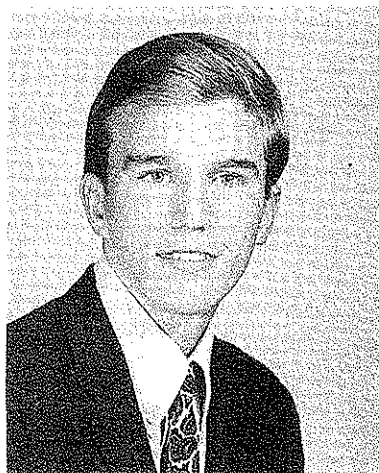

Judith Ann Schafer

Shari Marie Schulte

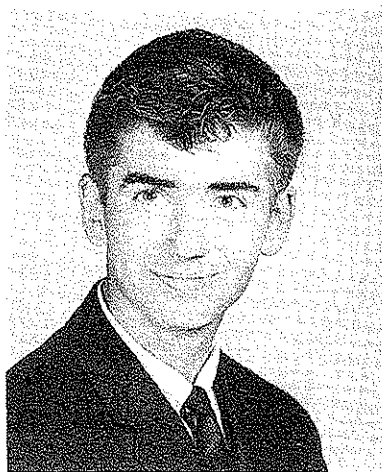

Mary Lee Schumacher

James Francis Siadak

Loretta Jean Siebert

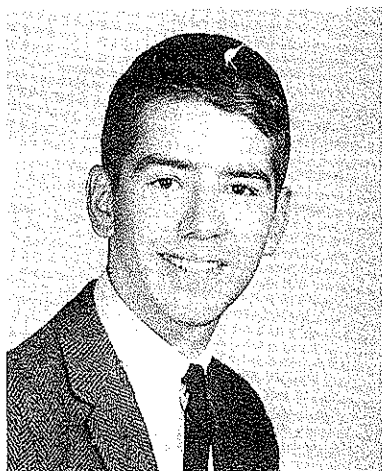

Robert Thomas Sims

Diane Marie Sprecher

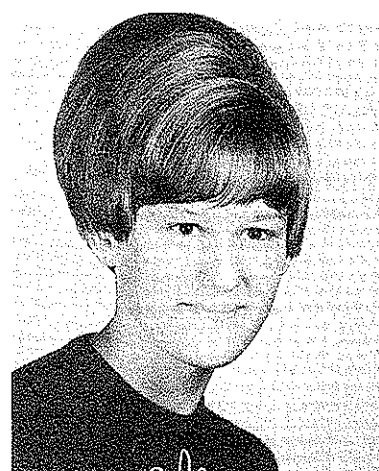

Henry Andrew Stafij

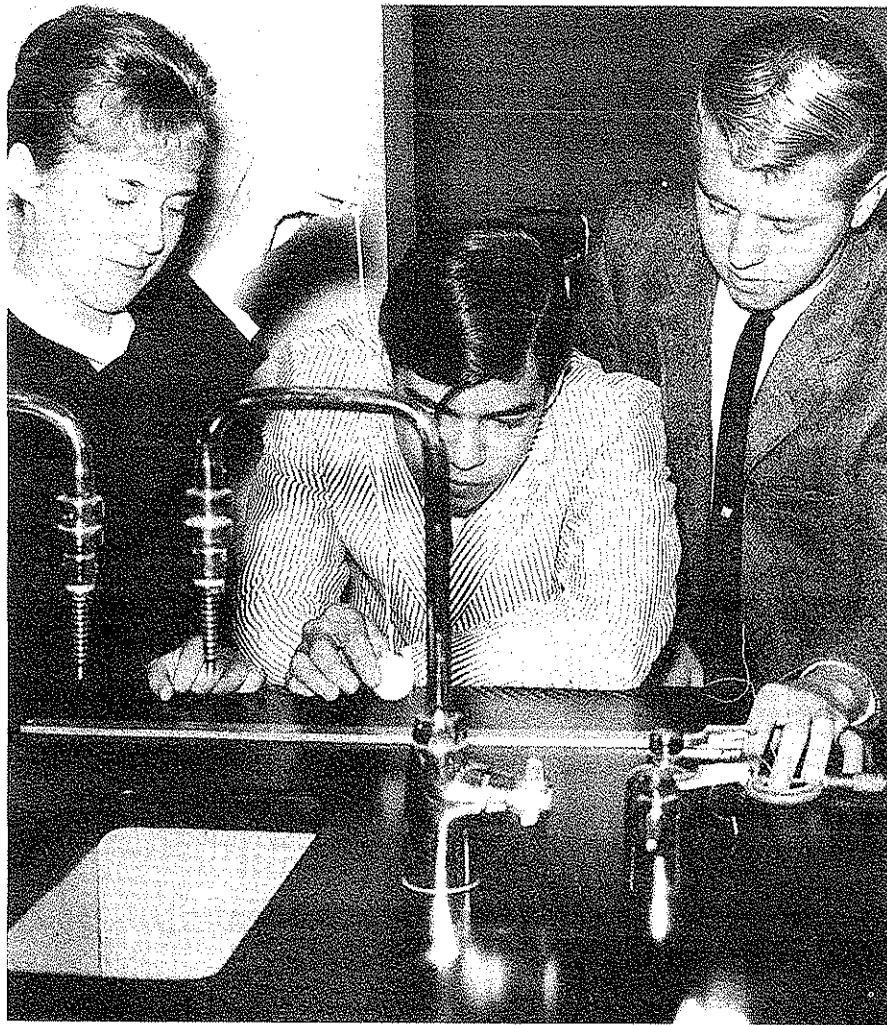

Mark Shawn Stanton

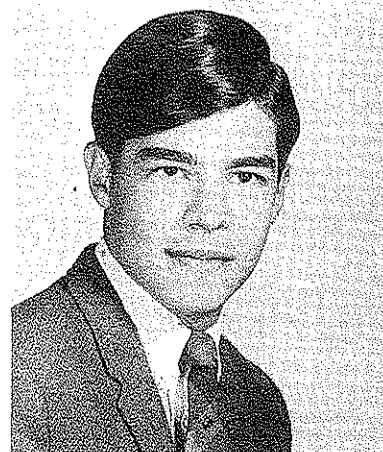

Claudette Ann Stec

Sandra Lee Switanowski

Future scientists, Pam Sameck, Frank Szymanski, and Dennis Clover find physics challenging as they attempt to determine the period of a small scale pendulum.

Franklin Thomas Szymanski

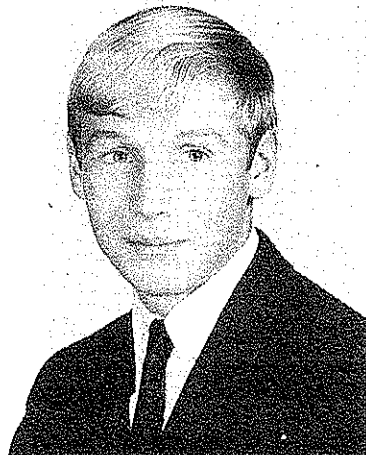

Susan Carol Tazzia

A Pocketful of Physics

Mark Francis Trax

Alan Gregory Urbanski

Helen Frances Uzarski

Together in Spirit

We Find the Way

It's a funny feeling you have walking down that aisle. You're pretty sure you'd be sad and all, but you never thought it would be like this. Then too, that "Well, I'm finally out" relief you subconsciously expected never comes.

Now, one memory fades into another, as you gaze through the flaming embers of the bonfire to your freshman initiation. Strange how that silly old tin man pops into your head. He brought you top honors in your first float contest and won for himself the position of class mascot.

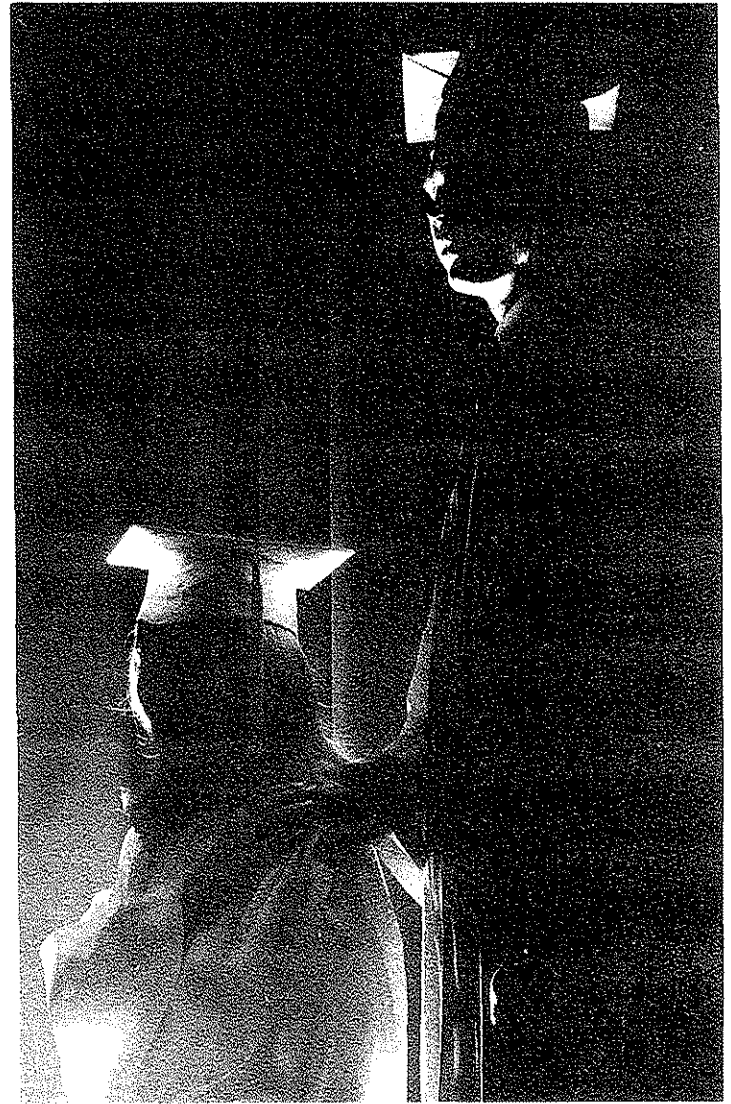

There was that delicious feast you prepared for the graduates when you were only sophomores. Remember how pleased you were when seniors you hardly knew complimented you?

That delightful breakfast drained the budget, but efforts to rebuild the treasury resulted in a wealthier, more unified class. Your Friday the Thirteenth dance brought you nothing but good luck.

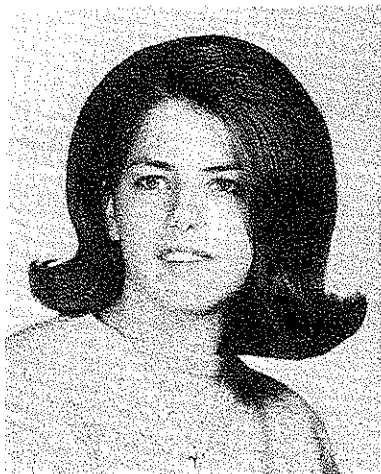

And then there was your first prom...and the picnic...and that yellow submarine, and...

"Oh, excuse me. Yes, thank you very much father."

Well, here it is. That diploma is finally mine. A lot more than this belongs to me though.

Senior year and graduation are only shadows of a life to come. Dianne Sarnowski and Robert Hebert exhibit their anxiety before that first step out of darkness.

Helen Mary Versele

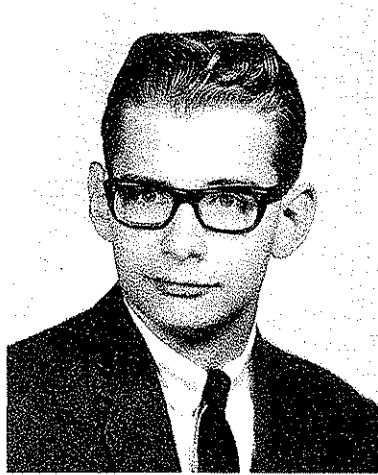

Laurie Theresa Visconti

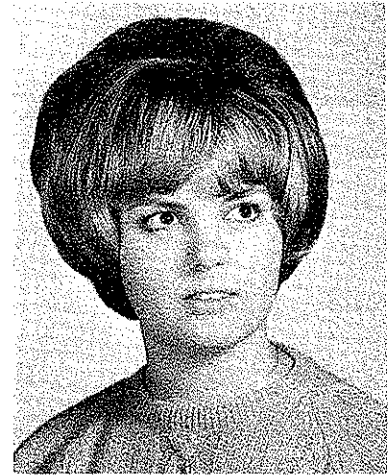

Anne Mary Voss

Kathleen Rae Wagner

Joseph Michail Welnack

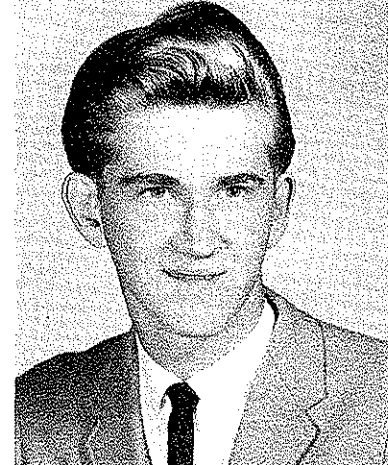

Kay Agnes Wilkins

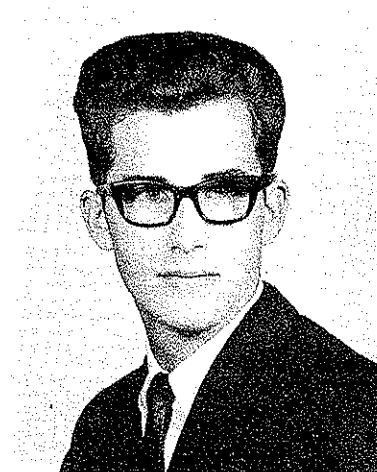

Lorraine Irene Winfield

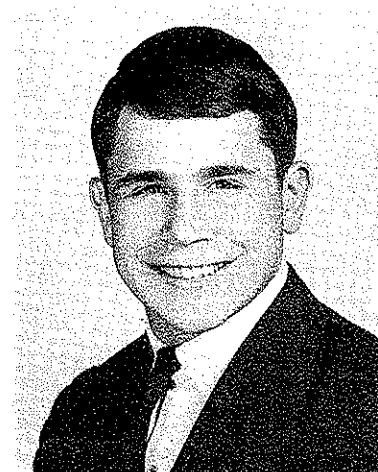

Germaine Virginia Wronski

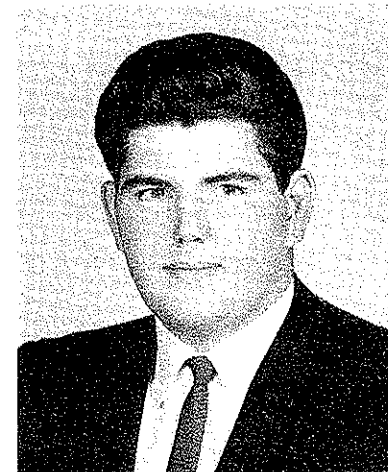

David Frank Wrublewski

James Martin Young

Daniel Francis Zelenak

Raymond Robert Zoccola